Stretching from Central America to the Caribbean Islands and the Andean region, these emerging markets are seeing steady growth of PET demand both from the bottling and the textile sectors. It's a key import market with trade opportunities with Asia, Middle East and North America. What is the competitiveness of resin supply to this region? The latest in CMT's PET market series, CAPET is your platform to gain first hand insight on the growth and evolution of the PET bottles and polyester fiber markets.

Panama City is a multicultural city with large populations from many different parts of the world. The city has a dense skyline of mostly highrise buildings, and it is surrounded by a large belt of tropical rainforest. Panama's Tocumen International Airport, the largest and busiest airport in Central America, offers daily flights to major international destinations.
