2nd Global FEED & Ingredients

30 Nov – 1 Dec 2015 / Bangkok, Thailand

“Trends Shifting the Markets & Innovations in Feed Nutrition”

The feed industry is positioned for growth to cater to the global protein requirements. Feed mills are continuously pressured to optimize feed efficiency to increase livestock productivity keeping in mind quality and sustainability concerns. Research and legislation on alternative sources of feed ingredients derived from insects and processed animal protein (PAP) are being assessed and evaluated. Driven by demand, big markets like China and India are also accelerating feed consumption and influencing soy, corn and wheat grain pricing. What are the market directions for ingredients such as corn and soybean? What are the developments in alternative feed nutrition & protein?

CMT's 2nd Global Feed & Ingredients will be a platform for feed millers, ingredient suppliers and traders to network and discuss the latest developments taking place in the feed sector.

Key Highlights:

- Potential of feed market: China, India, Thailand, Vietnam, Myanmar, Indonesia, etc.
- Global feed ingredients supply and demand outlook
- Feed nutrition and development for poultry, swine, cattle
- Alternative sources of feed ingredients derived from insects, algae, biomass
- Market for protein meals including soy meal and corn
- Aquaculture feed market directions and opportunities
- Elimination of antibiotics in livestock
- Sustainability and sourcing challenges in the feed and protein industry

And more!
